

Dear Klickitat Trail Supporter,

Your continued support of the Klickitat Trail Conservancy (KTC) is greatly appreciated. When we began our quest to create a public trail in 2003, our goals were small and our path unknown. Through the dedication and hard work of many volunteers and support of members like you, the path has led us on an amazing journey to an inspirational trail that is fast becoming known throughout the Pacific Northwest.

Each year the trail improves, but so much remains to be done. We need to repair and deck more of the many trestles in Swale Canyon. KTC needs to push the forest Service to implement its plan to pave part of the trail and put a fine gravel surface on the rest. The trail just north of the town of Klickitat needs to be developed, and in Klickitat, where the trail runs through an old lumber mill site, there is an opportunity to create something that might benefit this charming little former mill town financially, like a campground. This, and so much more, needs to be done, and we cannot do it without you.

Some Highlights of 2012 and Previews into 2013:

- KTC celebrated its 10th Anniversary!
- Half-marathon and SE run/walk that started in Lyle, finished in Klickitat
- University of Idaho college students volunteer time and labor to maintain trail
- Open house of the Coboose in Klickitat slated for Saturday, June 8, everyone welcome!
- Logo and website re-design

KTC strives to continue its mission of preserving and promoting the Klickitat Trail. Through partnership with Washington State Parks and U.S. Forest Service, we are able to keep our mission on track. We know that when we all work together, the difference we make becomes a positive statement to the generosity of our volunteers and members.

KTC is the only organization dedicated solely to making sure the Klickitat trail becomes a wonderful resource for all to enjoy. Because we are an all-volunteer organization, every dollar raised goes directly to trail improvements and maintenance. Our hard-working volunteers ask you to please renew your membership today. Thank you! We really appreciate your support.

Sincerely,
